LYNCH LAW AT RENO.

Louis Ortiz, Who Shot Officer Nash, Hanged.

The Reno Journal publishes a long account of the lynching of Louis Ortiz, the would-be murderer of Dick Nash, whom Ortiz shot Thursday night. The Journal says:

Richard Nash, the wounded officer, is an old respected citizen of Nevada. When a young man he mined in Humboldt county, and was elected Sheriff of that county in 1874. Shortly after the expiration of his term of office, he moved with his family to Reno, of which place he has since been a resident. He has served as an officer in Reno for many years, and commands the respect and confidence of every business man in the place. The hope is universally expressed that his wound will not prove serious and that he will be able to resume his duties in a few weeks.

HANGING DETERMINED UPON.

Early Friday evening it became apparent that there was a movement on foot which meant the meeting out of justice to Louis Ortiz, the cat throat and assassin. A crowd of determined citizens met at the lumber yard late in the evening, and a Journal reporter gleaned enough to know that they meant business. The meeting finally resulted in an agreement that he should hang.

After making the necessary arrangements and sending out guards, they quietly waited until about 11:45 o'clock Friday night, when they began their march in the direction of the Court-house.

Those who were watching and waiting for developments during the evening were rewarded shortly after 12 o'clock by seeing a few mysterious movements by two or three men, who stole quietly down Second and then Virginia streets, and evidently were taking a survey of the lay of the land.

DEMANDING THE PRISONER.

At the corner of the photograph gallery, where they had marched from their meeting place, stood seventy-five citizens, masked and armed, ready for action. At the command of their captain they moved steadily forward, and with a quiet and firm tread marched rapidly to the Court house where their members quickly filled the corridors leading to the Sheriff's office. A few raps at the door brought the question of "Who is there?" from within, to which came the reply, "We want to see you." The door was reluctantly opened and in an instant a dozen revolvers covered Under Sheriff Caughlin. Access was soon gained to the jail, having demanded and obtained the keys from the Under Sheriff, and they soon had the murdered in their possession.

TAKEN TO THE BRIDGE.

His hands were quickly tied, and with a man on each side, one in front and several behind who held cocked revolvers at his head, they marched him to the bridge from which he was soon to be launched into eternity. Arriving at the center of the bridge a double row of citizens formed in a circle around him. Guards were placed at each end of the bridge to keep back what few people might come near the scene. He was then given an opportunity to say what he wished. He was determined and cool. He asked for a priest and then, for a drink of water. His first request could not be complied with. However a flask of whiskey was obtained and a party held the flask and with turned face he drank the contents without a tremor. The moon shown its full light upon his bleated and distorted features, which were of a sallow livid hue. His hands and feet were firmly tied. He was then given an opportunity to converse again. He left a few directions as to his effects and requested that certain letters be written to Mexico. He then said: "I have nothing else to say. What can I say?" The ropes were in readiness and he was conducted to the edge of the bridge over which it was determined that he should be dropped. For fear that some accident might occur by which he might be precipitated into the river, it was thought better, after a hasty consultation, to let him swing from the crown on the center of the bridge. He was placed in readiness, the rope properly adjusted and when asked if he was ready, promptly and firmly replied "ready." At that command the rope tightened, his body awayed, his head turned to one side and with a quick movement, he was swung clear of the bridge. He had hardly risen three feet when the rope either broke or slipped, he fell backward with a dull thud.

Not a murmur or cry escaped him, but with a sickly smile, almost satanic, he requested them to hurry. A large rope was then obtained, quickly adjusted, and within a few moments, exactly at 12:39 A. M., he was suspended between heaven and earth. The body swung rapidly round, his livid face upturned to the starry armament. With glassy eyes his gaze was fixed, as if trying to penetrate the great futurity, to which he had given so little thought during his reckless life.

The body swung to and fro, with now and then a convulsive movement that sent a thrill of horror through the crowd. The sheen of his familiar greasy leather coat shown with a peculiar brilliancy.

He died as he lived—fearing neither God nor man. Not a drop of warm blood seemingly flowed in his veins. He was a dangerous man in any community. Suspended in mid air from the bridge was left the late Louis Ortiz, with the pale light of the moon on his livid and distorted countenance. He paid the penalty he so richly deserved. The crowd was orderly and determined, and evidently believed that necessity knows no law.

Held Up by a Bootblack.

SANTA CLARA, Sept. 17. Bob Christy, a well known character in this State, particularly in the vicinity of Santa Cruz, was arrested here this morning on the charge of robbing a man in the rear of the Valley Hotel on Franklin street, between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock last night.

He secured $40 according to the statement of J. Barshwood, a recent arrival here from Oregon, who alleges that Christy held him up at the point of a pistol and forced him to turn over that amount.

Christy follows the occupation of a bootblack, coming here from Santa Cruz the early part of the Summer, where it is alleged he was forced to leave the place by the citizens for selling and giving away obscene pictures. Christy has been known as a blowhard ever since coming here, but was considered a harmless crank until arrested on the charge of robbery. Christy claims to be a brother of the famous burnt cork artist. He says he has followed the trade of a bootblack since 1846.

Christy used to walk shoes in Carson and at different times went to other towns throughout the State.

Surprise Party.

The friends of Parsen Davis and wife piled into the family home last night and surprised the old folks. Every room in the house was full to overflowing and the merriment was kept up almost to midnight. About 9:30 the Capital Band appeared upon the scene and played a number of selections that infused the spirit of mirth all around the block. A feast was served that was well fitted to the occasion, and the ladies who managed the affair are to be congratulated on the smoothness of the programme.

The Briggs House.

This new hotel is composed of the old St. Charles Hotel and the Muller House. The new dining-room, which was opened yesterday, is very large and neat and a great improvement to the building. The old St. Charles Hotel dining-room will be fixed up as a billiard parlor and will be one of the best in the city. Mr. Gilbert Briggs, the popular landlord, is an ex-Sheriff of Douglas county, and his numerous friends will find him ready for them during fair week and at any time.

The Coming Circus.

Exchanges from cities where McMahon's circus has spread its tents, speak of the performances and attractions in the highest terms of praise. A contemporary says: From opening to close every act was loudly applauded. From all accounts the public can safely look forward to Tuesday Sept. 29, at Carson as the day and date of the very best circus ever seen here when Jo-Jo, the wonder of wonders, the largest elephant in the world and other famous features of general interest will be presented. There is but one Jo-Jo; there never will be another. A bill board is now being built opposite the Mint large enough to accommodate a panorama of Nevada.

There is no Secret

About your buying shoes to advantage. You may not know any more about the quality of leather than you do about a lost comet but that is no reason why you should get "stuck." Either you get your money's worth or you don't and if you don't it is your own fault. We are in the shoe business because we happen to know something about shoes and leather. It is "bread and butter" to us, therefore we make it a STUDY. Of the knowledge you get as much benefit as though you possessed it yourself for we place it entirely at your disposal and if you think that other houses can quote lower prices than we do, come and look at the goods and prices. We will put our time against yours and we feel confident that the result will be a mutual benefit.
